

Council Holds Second Listening Session on Vacant Council Seat

by Anna Bedford-Dillow

On Saturday, December 30, Greenbelt City Council held its second listening session on the topic of the vacant council seat (see the December 28, 2023, issue for more on the first session). There were approximately 30 people in the audience at the Greenbriar Community Center, just under half from Greenbelt East.

Only half of current councilmembers were able to attend in person due to illness and travel. Mayor Emmett Jordan and Councilmembers Jenni Pompei and Rodney Roberts were present. Councilmember Kristen Weaver joined via Zoom due to Covid and Councilmember Danielle McKinney joined for some of the meeting from an airport. Councilmember Silke Pope was out of the country.

The meeting began almost 15 minutes late due to technical and audio problems on both Facebook and Zoom, as well as microphones in the room. Jordan began the meeting by standing and shouting remarks until City Manager Josué Salmerón was able to bring him a working microphone.

cent 3-3 vote on how to proceed to highlight the need for expediency in the process, as they're currently a council of six. Council plans to hold one more work-session to formulate a decision rubric to help shape the process.

Jordan shared that council has created a draft list of characteristics they are seeking in a candidate. Among them are motivation (why they are running), qualifications (skills, knowledge, experience), a track record of community involvement, demonstrated public service and viability (their ability to be a viable candidate if it were a regular election).

Jordan says he personally has received about 60 emails about filling the seat and "they're pretty divided." Roberts requested Jordan make the 60 emails he received public and part of the

Kwanzaa Celebrated in Greenbelt With Food, Fun, Info and Uplift

by Lois Rosado

Delicious food, dynamic, informative, fun and uplifting: these are some of the comments stated about the Kwanzaa Karamu held on Saturday, December 30. The event was organized by Chiquita Jackson Enterprises in collaboration with the Greenbelt Black History and Culture Committee, RUAK, The SPACE and Beltway Plaza. There were 60 participants, including children of various ages. County Councilmember Ingrid Watson was the primary sponsor of the event and there was additional assistance from the Greenbelt Recreation Department.

Program

Chiquita Jackson, president of Chiquita Jackson Enterprises, hosted the program. She thanked the audience for attending and called on Mayor Emmett Jordan to welcome attendees. He thanked Jackson and the community group coalition that helped arrange the event. Dr. Lois Rosado explained the purpose of Kwanzaa (which means first fruits

A Look Back at 2023

The News Review presents highlights from last year's news stories. The reviews were prepared by Deanna Dawson, Anna Bedford-Dillow, Cathie Meetre, Diane Oberg and Pat Scully.

Ric Gordon

The city was saddened by the sudden death of 41-year-old Councilmember Ric Gordon, who had been reelected just weeks before to his second term. A shocked and grieving council cancelled all significant action at its November 27, meeting, opting to devote it to memorializing their late friend and colleague. With strong ties to Franklin Park and as an advocate for LGBTQ rights and increasing diversity in city government, Gordon brought a new perspective to council. Council then embarked on a search for a new councilmember, deciding to accept applications on a very tight timeline with an application process lasting just eight days. Council will conduct interviews during the first two weeks of January with a goal of appointing the new councilmember on January 22.

Murder of Madame Sylla

On September 1, the news broke of the brutal death of Mariam Toure Sylla, a teacher at Greenbelt's Dora Kennedy French Immersion school and Greenbelt East resident. The first intimation of the unfolding tragedy was on July 30, when police were notified that she had not returned from her walk the previous evening in Schrom Hills Park. Despite appeals and efforts by many in the community and particularly by teachers, parents and students from her school, no word of her whereabouts was received for over a month. Only on September 1 was a dismembered body (originally found August 1 in a park in Clinton) identified as being hers.

Harold Francis Landon III, 33, of University Park was arrested and charged with her murder and was formally indicted on October 6. He had been seen and photographed with his truck as he dumped the body, and his phone records placed him in Greenbelt at the time of the abduction. He had been in police custody on unrelated domestic violence charges since August 1, the date the body was found.

Mariam Toure Sylla disappeared on July 29.

New City Manager

In August, Greenbelt City Council announced the appointment of a new city manager. Josué Salmerón took the post after a successful stint as city manager of a somewhat smaller city in Ohio and has subsequently moved into a GHI home in the city. He defeated several applicants (including Interim Manager Tim George) vying for the position.

Salmerón's willingness to live in the city was fortuitous, as it made moot an earlier issue when council amended the city charter to give council the power to decide, on a case-by-case basis, whether or not a city manager would be required to live in the city. This had been a tenet of the city charter since the city's founding.

This charter change was deplored by a group of citizens who petitioned to force a referendum on the question of whether or not the city manager must be a resident rather than having the decision rest with council. With a requirement of 20 percent of eligible voters signing the petition (over 3,000 residents – almost as many as all who voted in city elections), the attempt was unsuccessful, but over 800 residents signed, indicating their dissatisfaction with council's pre-emptive move.

Letters to the Editor

Cookies on the Bridge

I volunteer for the Cookies on the Bridge activity started by RUAK (Random Unselfish Acts of Kindness). Volunteers greet students coming home from school across the Spellman Overpass from Eleanor Roosevelt High School and hand out cookies and carrots. RUAK is still seeking volunteers and I want potential volunteers to know how much fun this is.

The students are so grateful and respectful and it is really delightful to offer a snack to those who want it. Many students remind me how hungry teenagers are and are thankful I do not have a number of how many they can take.

My day is Friday, but I know I have family obligations at the end of January that will mean I cannot be there. If people are unwilling to commit to every week, perhaps they could sign up to be a substitute on days the regulars cannot be present. It is just 45 minutes of your time, but you leave happy and feeling great that you were able to do this.

The kids bring joy into my day, rain or shine.

Why the Euphemisms?

The article, Park Service to Reduce Deer Numbers at Greenbelt Park is unnecessarily cryptic. It states that NPS plans to carry out “wildlife reduction operations,” that roads will be closed for the safety of visitors and employees during “reduction activities,” and that the operations will be conducted in a manner “proven safe and effective.” Readers skimming the article could miss the sentence that describes those carrying out the “operations” as “highly trained firearms experts” and the paragraph further down that explains that “all suitable meat from reduction activities” will be donated to local shelters.

Why not be explicit right in the headline? Park Service to Shoot and Kill Deer at Greenbelt Park. Readers will undoubtedly have various opinions about the plan, as they do about nearly everything that happens in Greenbelt. Why obscure the facts with euphemisms? The News Review is a newspaper, not a condolence card, and sometimes the truth is distasteful. If the language used in the article came directly from the NPS press release, why conclude in NPS’s obfuscation? The News Review’s job is not to protect the public from the truth but to elucidate and enlighten.

Fallen Leaves

In modern-day Helsinki, two lonely souls in search of love meet by chance in a local karaoke bar. However, the pair's path to happiness is beset by numerous obstacles – from lost numbers to mistaken addresses, alcoholism and a charming stray dog. Said critic Odie Henderson of the Boston Globe, “This film is so damn funny, and not in a laugh-out-loud way, though there are some of those moments, too. The humor in a Kaurismäki film is deadpan; it sneaks up on you and always tells you something about the characters.”

The Color Purple

A story of love and resilience based on the novel and the Broadway musical, The Color Purple is a decades-spanning tale of one woman's journey to independence. Celie faces many hardships in her life, but ultimately finds extraordinary strength and hope in the unbreakable bonds of sisterhood. “A powerful and electric film, this is an amazing theatrical experience. Director Blitz Bazawule delivers a lavish old school Hollywood musical, yet also the most modern and honest adaptation of The Color Purple to date,” said critic Grace Rudoph of Beyond the Trailer. “A must see.”

Big Business/The Kid

Oliver Hardy and Stan Laurel fight with a homeowner while selling Christmas trees in Big Business. The Kid, Charlie Chaplin's first full-length feature, is a silent masterpiece about a little tramp who discovers a little orphan and brings him up but is left desolate when the orphanage reclaims him. Chaplin directed, produced and starred in the film, as well as composed the score.

Pepco Offers Billing Assistance
For Higher Winter Energy Bills

Winter brings colder temperatures, which lead to increased energy use and higher energy bills. Pepco customers can take advantage of billing assistance programs, including the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP), a federally funded program that helps limited-income households pay their home energy bills. Customers should not wait for winter heating bills to arrive before applying for help. The program is first-come, first-served and is only available until funding runs out.

LIHEAP provides grants in varying amounts with no payback required. Requirements include a household income below a set threshold based on household size (see benefits.gov/benefit/623). Seeing One Another Clearly (Mission Discernment Part 1)

Rev. Ann Kadlecek with Worship Associate Carol Boston

We’ve all encountered “other people” with a distorted sense of reality, but still we humans like to think that we perceive ourselves, one another and the world clearly. But do we? How might we see one another more clearly? And what difference might it make, for us and for the world?

Applicants for City Council Share Their Motivation, Skills

The Greenbelt News Review invited the six applicants for the Greenbelt City Council vacancy to share with our readers why they are applying for the position and the most important credentials or skills they would bring to the role of councilmember, if appointed. One applicant, April Tanter, withdrew from consideration January 2. Here are the responses we received from the remaining five applicants, in alphabetical order.

Matthew Inzeo

I am a longtime Greenbelt resident, now 31 years. I am an Eleanor Roosevelt graduate, and also attended Greenbelt Elementary School and Greenbelt Middle School. For 14 of those years I have served on city committees, currently on the Advisory Planning Board, and coached Little League teams for 10 years. I have lived in four Greenbelt neighborhoods: GHI, Lakeside North, Greenbriar and finally Greenspring, in Greenbelt East, where Domenek and I are raising four children.

I reiterate my commitments, if appointed to council, to applying my law enforcement experience to Greenbelt’s rising crime rate, expanding recreation facilities and programs (especially including Franklin Park), promoting business and job growth, improving intra-city transportation, sharing Greenbelt’s tradition of environmental advocacy and putting community first. I eagerly anticipate welcoming the FBI to Greenbelt, but also realize that significant city planning decisions are needed before it arrives.

If appointed I would be the first Latino ever to serve on the city council, adding diversity to the council at a time when Greenbelt’s Hispanic population is growing. Within the council, I promise again to be a team player, speak in a collaborative voice and respect differences of opinion.

In the recent council election, I received 1,092 votes but finished one position short of election. It is meaningful to me that this council vacancy resulted from Ric Gordon’s tragic passing. I am honored that Carla, his widow, has supported my appointment.

I repeat again my previously-stated commitment to serve you, your children and the entire Greenbelt community.

Amy Knesel

Greetings! I’m Amy Knesel (NEE-sil), but you can call me Amy K. Ten years ago, I fell in love with Greenbelt and moved my growing family from a single-family home in Hyattsville to a tiny townhouse in GHI. Since then, I’ve immersed myself in our vibrant community: serving on various boards (Greenbelt Elementary School, Greenbelt Soccer Alliance and the Labor Day Festival Committee) and engaging with local businesses in both paid and volunteer capacities, including our beloved Greenbelt Cinema.

Among my most gratifying roles was spearheading the Greenbelt Pumpkin Festival from 2017 to 2022. In 2018, supported by CHEARS and a grant from the Greenbelt Community Foundation, I expanded the Festival across Greenbelt West, East and Center – increasing accessibility so that everyone in our city can experience the magic of our namesake green spaces.

I am excited to have the chance to continue my service as a member of Greenbelt City Council. It is a weighty honor to have this opportunity in the wake of Councilmember Ric Gordon’s passing. If selected, I will serve the remainder of his term respectfully, with an eye toward community, equity and accessibility.

Building on my decade of volunteerism, I approach community service with a dynamic mindset, seeing “community” as an action word – ever-evolving, with constant room for improvement. Teamwork is ingrained in my approach, and I am eager to bring my passion, dedication and collaborative spirit to council.

For more information about my experiences and vision, please visit amykforgreenbelt.com.

Leon Schachter

Leon “Lee” Schachter believes serving on the Greenbelt City Council will help residents prosper for which he will be emotionally rewarded; that he will hit the ground running given his extensive public service on another city council and that he will add diversity to the current council as a senior citizen and renter living near the Roosevelt Center.

Being retired, Lee has time and energy to make council his top priority. He was in the Senior Executive Service for the federal government, a chief administrative judge and a law instructor. He served for 14 years as an elected councilperson for Cheverly, Md., which, like Greenbelt, relies on volunteers, its own police and public works departments, hosts diverse populations and has a significant budget.

Lee has decades of connections to Greenbelt through involvement with his two children raised in Greenbelt and his brother, Dr. David Schachter, who maintained a medical practice in Greenbelt. Lee belongs to the Mishkan Torah synagogue, Golden Age Club, Aquatic & Fitness Center and is a New Deal Café regular.

Lee, due process champion and leader within DOD, listened to stakeholders, was open to compromise and made decisions based on his informed conscience.

Being the victim of an armed robbery and home invasion, Lee is pro police, provided they are well trained to use force only when necessary for the safety of themselves and others. Like many senior citizens, Lee would have to be hard pressed to raise taxes.

Lee pledges to maintain a record for the meeting. He also asked the public to share their feelings about opening the application period back up, calling the timeframe “totally inappropriate” and insisting “the more candidates we have the better.”

Six individuals collected signatures, provided financial disclosures and statements, and successfully filed during the nine-day window. As announced last week, the applicants are Matthew Inzeo, Amy Knesel, Leon Schachter, James Whipple, Julie Winters and April Tanter, who has now withdrawn. Knesel, Schachter and Winters attended the listening session and introduced themselves. (See their statements on this page.)

Would-be applicant Kevin Lockhart “Coach K” was present, as he was at the first listening session, and spoke of his desire to represent Greenbelt West, though he did not complete an application during the window. Lockhart spoke of raising his son alone in Franklin Park for 15 years, after his son’s mother died, and of Ric Gordon. “I knew Ric very well. We worked together on some things,” he said. Speaking about the lack of participation from Franklin Park, he pointed to the two members of the audience from that apartment complex, saying, “Out of that 9,000, there’s three people here. That’s crazy.” Lockhart said he was jealous of all the resources in Greenbelt Center, listing a few and contrasting that to “a gym for basketball. That’s it” in Greenbelt West. “The bridge is not broken. We will continue that bridge,” he said of the isolation of Greenbelt West. Lockhart expressed willingness to serve as a liaison in some way but asked council to “open it up and let me in.”

Louise Weissman of Hillside Road spoke against reopening the process, saying Greenbelt has a representative democracy not participatory democracy. Questions she’d like posed to candidates are their opinions on rent stabilization and affordable housing, their thinking on commercial development and how to address police accountability.

Carmen Healey, of Motiva in Greenbelt West and formerly of Franklin Park, said she would like to see the process opened. “The one week was not enough,” she said, “especially for the West side. No one over there knows ... I’ve been in Greenbelt for about seven or eight years. Had no clue ... so I don’t think it’s a waste of anyone’s time ... Ric Gordon was a big part of the West side of Greenbelt ... We do need representation on the West side.”

Vijay Kowtha of Greenbelt East was against opening the application period again. “I’m very happy you have good candidates that have signed up, there’s no reason to increase it,” he said. He wanted to ask candidates how they’ll face societal changes, including an influx of immigrants. “The world is changing in front of us,” he stressed. Other priorities he shared were transportation and engaging the three parts of Greenbelt. “We are failing in transportation,” said Kowtha.

Aileen Kroll of Greenbelt Center expressed appreciation that council has the ability to consider the “totality of the circumstances” and not just appoint the next highest vote-getter, saying, “I’m looking for somebody who has shown they are engaged with all of Greenbelt.” She hopes council appoints someone invested in the city, with the ability to listen to divergent voices, to create unity and be accountable and transparent.

Susan Harris, also of Greenbelt Center, praised the process as “excellent” and asked if the interviews would be held publicly. Jordan believed they would be.

A resident of Windsor Green in Greenbelt East, said, “Representation does matter.” She

FBI HQ May Come to Greenbelt

On November 8, the General Services Administration (GSA) announced that it had selected Greenbelt over Landover, Md. and Springfield, Va., as the site for the new headquarters for the FBI, the culmination of a 14-year process. Jubilant federal, state and county representatives extolled the 7,500 new jobs and the economic boost to Prince George’s County (issue of November 16). Within a week, FBI director Christopher Wray and Virginia elected officials challenged the selection, alleging that impropriety and political considerations fouled the selection process. GSA is reviewing the selection.

New Deal Café

The New Deal Café had another bumpy ride this year when the arrangement with the Greenbelt Co-op Supermarket, which had run the food service aspect of the Café, posted a significant loss from running the operation. The Café, exercising due diligence, and with the support of the Co-op board, began a preliminary search for a new vendor in case the two boards were unable to negotiate a mutually beneficial contract.

At the moment, the Co-op is still on deck but its contract, originally ending June 2023, was first extended to October 31, 2023, and extended once more to January 31, 2024. The Co-op’s ongoing losses were almost eliminated when the New Deal picked up paying the rent (which had been paid by the Co-op), but the current arrangement so far benefited neither the Co-op nor the New Deal. (Editor’s Note: The boards of the Co-op and Café are currently in negotiations for a new contract. Again exercising due diligence, the Café board is keeping its options open for a new vendor, should that become necessary.)

In a lively open quarterly meeting in August (issue of August 31), New Deal Café President Michael Hartman hoped more sales could be generated and Treasurer Dorian Winterfeld reported reserves were being whittled away from paying the rent and there was also over $100,000 in long-term debt to consider. He appealed to supporters for help.

Juvenile Crime

In February, we reported on a “TikTok Challenge” fueling car thefts by juveniles. Begun in 2022, it exploited a security loophole in Kias and Hyundais that enabled certain models without push-button ignitions to be hotwired using just a USB cord. It drove a spike in car thefts by juveniles in 2023.

In September (the most recent monthly crime report currently available) the total year-to-date motor vehicle thefts in Greenbelt was 429, which compares to 75 for the same period in 2022. Greenbelt Police Department reported 51 arrests of juveniles from January to September 2023, up from 12 for January to September 2022.

In August, we reported that Greenbelt’s Chief of Police Richard Bowers feared police were prevented from interrogating youth and breaking up carjacking rings. “He is concerned that a nonviolent youth offender can be arrested in the morning, released to their parents and rearrested again that same evening,” reported Lois Rosado (see page 1 of the August 3, 2023 issue). Three recent Acts – the Maryland Juvenile Justice Reform Bill of 2021, the Interrogation Protection Act of 2022 and Child Safe Harbor–Abuse–Trafficking Act of 2023 – are designed to protect juveniles from exploitation

Council Holds Disappointing State Highways Worksession

by Cathie Meetre

Mayor Emmett Jordan opened the December 18 worksession with two representatives from District 3 of the Maryland State Highway Administration (SHA) which serves Prince George’s and Montgomery counties. He noted that SHA has jurisdiction over the two main highways that divide the city – Greenbelt Road (Route 193) and Kenilworth Avenue (Route 201). Assistant City Manager Tim George, Director of Planning and Community Development Terri Hruby and Planner Jaime Fierer also participated.

Carm Saimbré and Patrice Emezie attended on behalf of SHA. Jordan launched the meeting by asking about the impact of the overall 8 percent funding cut that will affect state transportation. The answer was unspecific though it seemed the effect will be felt more in the next Fiscal Year (FY) beginning July 2, 2024, and that SHA would continue to prioritize safety. This became much the pattern of response from SHA, with only rarely any specific information available. An exception was when council was assured by Saimbré that the state was well-prepared for the onset of winter driving conditions.

Greenbelt Road/Hanover Parkway

Much of the discussion concerned the stretch of Greenbelt Road between the intersection with Southway eastward to Hanover Parkway. Concerns included inadequate lighting at the northwest corner of the Hanover Parkway intersection where pedestrians, including many students, cross from the school to Greenway Center. The bus stop on the north side of Greenbelt Road at the exit ramp from the Baltimore-Washington Parkway was cited as a safety hazard. The relative priority of the merging lanes of traffic from the Parkway with the westbound traffic on Greenbelt Road was also pointed out as confusing and dangerous. The condition of the road bed on the entrance ramp to the southbound Parkway also needs attention.

No Immediate Action

SHA representatives, who were reminded by Jordan and Councilmembers Silke Pope and

Greenbelt Road east of Southway was the topic of much concern in the council worksession with the State Highway Administration.

Rodney Roberts that these questions were perennial, said that it was likely that resurfacing would take place as part of regular maintenance planned in early 2024. While frequently reminding council that safety was a priority, the SHA estimate for the unsafe lighting and the hazardous bus stop crosswalk at the Parkway off-ramp were described as 18 months to two years out for planning. Pope, perhaps tongue-in-cheek, asked if this was from the time council last asked about it a couple of years ago or the time of the current meeting and the answer was, from this meeting. Citing increased local pedestrian deaths, Jordan requested that SHA place more priority on this before a pedestrian was killed. Pope requested a plan of what is included in the improvement plan at the intersection for early 2024 – though it seemed to be more routine road mending than any improvement to the intersection’s overall safety.

Bus Stop and Parkway Merge

Councilmember Jenni Pompi suggested potential traffic calming and additional signage for the bus stop located on the north side of Greenbelt Road across from Greenway. It sits on a small island with the ramp off the Parkway on one side and Greenbelt Road on the other and a risky crosswalk to access it. This stimulated a proposition from Roberts to eliminate the westbound exit ramp from the Parkway so that westbound traffic would instead made a sharp right turn onto Greenbelt Road at the light. He pointed out that this would render the bus stop much safer and would also eliminate the merging and speed problem between the Parkway and the right turn to Southway. (Editor’s Note: The potential of backups onto the Parkway by restricting the exit of traffic turning right onto Greenbelt Road was not addressed.)

On the bus stop issue, SHA’s Emezie noted that a safety study which would include a traffic study to observe traffic patterns and analyze crash data could be performed within an approximately 30-to-60-day timeline, but she didn’t think that changes in road configuration such as suggested by Roberts would be included in such a consideration and said she would need to confer with the construction division to ascertain more.

Bike Paths

Greenbelt bike proponent Jeff Lemieux (connecting online) sparked encouraging news for the local trail segment from Mandan Road to Good Luck Road along Greenbelt Road that would form part of the larger project to run protected bike lanes from suggested Greenbelt West should be a big part of the consideration since that’s where Ric Gordon was from.

Heather Bloomhart, who lives in Greenbelt East near Schrom Hills Park and moved during the pandemic, spoke of the exclusion from Greenbelt. At the Greenbelt Aquatic & Fitness Center she was told that she didn’t qualify for resident membership and wasn’t a resident but found she was when she voted and checked her tax bill.

Judith Davis, former councilmember and resident of Greenbelt East, said, “I hope council does maintain a diverse council.” She hopes council will determine through their interviews that the person wants to do the work, read agendas and emails, meet people, attend meetings inside and outside Greenbelt. “I hope that this person has resided in Greenbelt for several years, that they have attended council meetings and worksessions, that they have time for meetings,” said Davis. “Finally, one thing I know the council will have to do when this is all over: Change the charter, please!”

Davis also shared that at one point Greenbelt East had a majority on council. “It changes ... We all work for all of Greenbelt,” she said.

Bill Orleans argued, “It was not an excellent process as has been suggested several times today by several people. It’s a flawed process. Maybe even a very bad process ... There’s someone aggrieved by the process. Allow it to open up if they did not receive the information to know about the week-and-a-half period to submit an application.”

Jordan said it was an oversimplification to break the city down into three sections.

Reverend Ray Raysor from Franklin Park asked, “If the process is already decided on, what is the purpose of the listening sessions?”

Jordan said the decision criteria and matrix are not set and councilmembers are interested in hearing from the public.

Pompi said the councilmembers are using a matrix and rubric to try to level the playing field and be as fair as possible, “We want to be fair, we want to be transparent and accountable too,” she said.

Roberts expressed appreciation for everyone coming out. “I think if you look back at Greenbelt’s history, you were not even allowed to live in Greenbelt unless you agreed to participate in the community,” he said. “That is a big, a huge part of our town. It always has been and it needs to be. Greenbelt is a participatory community and it needs to stay a participatory community.”

Toni Mathewson, of Hunting Ridge in Greenbelt East, would like the person who is chosen to demonstrate a collaborative nature and willingness to compromise. “Regarding extending the application process, I’m not particularly in favor of that but I think it highlights the issue of communication, especially with Greenbelt East and West, two-way communication,” said Mathewson.

Pompi stressed that residents can email council to have their comments be part of public record. That email address is council@greenbeltmd.gov.

regular presence throughout Greenbelt, especially west of its historical center and work tirelessly for the benefit of all residents.

James Whipple

I am applying for the Greenbelt City Council vacancy because I have a vision for our city that continues the legacy left behind by Ric Gordon. The Greenbelt that I envision is one where all people are recognized and respected, regardless of where they live, the color of their skin or their socioeconomic class. The problems we face now are hidden beneath the surface and require a keen insight in order to find the right solutions. My campaign for the 2023 city council was rooted in this drive; I sought to enable walking and biking as feasible means of traversing our city, so those who cannot afford a car can still do things we take for granted: go to work, get groceries, visit friends and loved ones.

I seek to bring my empathy and honesty to the council. I have served as a member of the Greenbelt Homes, Inc. board of directors shortly after moving to the community in 2022 and have been politically active since moving to Greenbelt in 2016. During that time, I have never shied away from my beliefs and never misrepresented myself to those who place their trust in me. While serving on the board, I have mediated conflicts between neighbors and friends, made hard decisions to ensure the continued stability of the community and collaborated on policies and budgets to guide the neighborhood to the egalitarian ideals I hold close to my heart.

Julie Winters

A friend asked me recently, “You didn’t run for council in November; why are you [applying] now?”

That is a fair question.

As a somewhat introverted editor, I had never seen running for any office on my personal horizon. But when the city announced that it was seeking applicants to fill the council vacancy, I saw a unique opportunity for service: to be a steady, thoughtful presence on the council for the remainder of this term.

I have lived in Greenbelt for 27 years, nearly half my life. I love this city and understand its history and character and something of the challenges it faces. I am willing to do the work to understand the technical aspects of areas outside my expertise (e.g., the land and environmental issues surrounding the maglev project and the FBI relocation).

I have served on the board of Friends of New Deal Café Arts for the past six years, the last few as vice president. For the last eight years, I have also been one of the three principal administrators of Greenbelters, the largest Greenbelt-oriented community group (membership approximately 7,400) on Facebook. This role has involved collaboration and compromise with my fellow administrators. It has also given me deep exposure to the opinions, concerns and values of diverse Greenbelt residents.

I am diplomatic, practical and able (and willing) to consider issues from a variety of perspectives. If chosen to fill the council seat, I will do my utmost to serve our city well.

These applicants are being considered by current councilmembers for the vacant seat. Though residents will not vote on the applicants, they are invited to give feedback to council on the candidates, selection criteria, and/or questions to ask during interviews. Emails should be sent to council@greenbeltmd.gov.

16-Year-Old Pleads Guilty in Murder Of Greenbelter at Wheaton Metro

On Thursday, December 28, 16-year-old Emmanuel Simmonds, of Gaithersburg, pleaded guilty to first-degree murder in the death of 18-year-old Tenneson Vaughn Leslie Jr., of Greenbelt. Simmonds shot Leslie on a platform at Wheaton Metro Station after a fight between two groups of young men, believed to be unknown to each other, began on the Metro's escalator and culminated with the shooting on the platform (see the May 25, 2023 issue of the News Review).

According to the Montgomery County State's Attorney's office, Simmonds shot Leslie in the back of the head, then he and the group he was with fled the scene. According to the plea agreement, Simmonds will face a maximum sentence of 40 years. He will be sentenced on June 28, 2024. Due to the fact that he is a minor, a police photograph was not released.

Another teen, who was 14 at the time, is being charged in juvenile court as accessory after the fact.

"This was a shockingly brazen, callous act by a young offender. The defendant executed a young man on a crowded Metro platform, not only claiming one innocent life but placing many other people at risk as there were other citizens, simply using the Metro system, that easily could have been struck by a bullet," said State's Attorney John McCarthy.

Carrier for Washington Post Carjacked on Ridge Road

On the morning of Sunday, December 31, the Washington Post called several residents to inform them their newspapers would be late because their long-time carrier, whom many know personally, was carjacked.

The carjacking took place late Saturday, December 30, as the carrier was delivering papers in the area of 54 Court Ridge. She reported parking her white 2023 Toyota Corolla (Md. 9FH9232) in the court while delivering the newspapers. After she finished her deliveries, she saw a male in his early 20s attempting to put the vehicle in reverse. The suspect appeared to have difficulty operating the vehicle, and the victim tried to pull him out of her car. She even offered him all of her money to let her keep the car, but the suspect pulled out what she believed to be a gun and pointed it at her. The suspect was then able to put the car in reverse and push the victim away as he fled toward Crescent Road.

The police searched the area but were unable to find the suspect. Fortunately, the victim did not sustain any injuries during the incident.

Volunteer Crowd Managers Needed for Theater Events

by Carol Shaw

Greenbelt Arts Center needs volunteer crowd managers. This is a new position with the theater. A crowd manager (CM) is an usher trained in crowd management through the Maryland State Fire Marshal's Office. The CM welcomes patrons, manages any issues in the lobby prior to showtime, seats people with special needs and latecomers, and greets patrons at the theater door and checks their tickets. They stay until the audience leaves. Throughout their two-to-three-hour shift, they are responsible for making sure egress is not blocked, escorting people to safety in an emergency and basic monitoring of the crowd. For the most part, they can watch the performance while keeping an eye out in the periphery for emergencies.

Good candidates include volunteers already involved with safety and emergency management, such as firefighters, police officers and members of a Community Emergency Response Team. Welcome are those who love theater, are good with managing diverse people, at least 18 years old and available for two to three performances a month. A typical show is nine performances over three weekends. Both initial and ongoing training is provided. A background check is required by the City of Greenbelt because the volunteers work with children. Email boxgac@greenbeltartscenter.org if interested.

Washington, D.C., to Annapolis. SHA said that the feasibility study for this Greenbelt section is expected at the end of January, with the overall feasibility study expected in the spring. SHA confirmed that they were working with the Innovative Contracting Division on the bike path planning.

Also on the topic of local cycling, Jordan asked about the markings for the bike lanes on Greenbelt Road between Kenilworth and Beltway Plaza. He was keen to see physical markers such as bollards or flex poles that would give more guidance to motorists about bike lane delineation and crossing points – especially for those getting to the Dora Kennedy French Immersion school. He also wondered why, unlike Montgomery County and D.C., Prince George's was not using bright green paint to emphasize pedestrian and cycle demarcations. SHA's Emezie was unaware of the use of green paint for this purpose.

Other Location-Specific Issues
Councilmember Danielle McKinney recommended no U-Turn signs at Greenbelt Station Parkway's intersection with Greenbelt Road where such turns have already caused major accidents. Pope pointed out that the intersection of Lakecrest Drive and Greenbelt Road was confusing and dangerous and had been brought to the SHA's attention for many years without any action being taken. On the topic of speeding on Kenilworth, council was informed that it is the police who are responsible for speed cameras and a location proposed by Jordan near Pontiac Street on Kenilworth is unincorporated and therefore a county police issue.

Jordan asked about mowing and trash pickup. He was informed that the schedule was about every six weeks and mowing was seasonal. He was also concerned – again a perennial request – that the pedestrian/cycle path on Greenbelt Road as it passes under the Beltway was in poor condition with overgrown bushes and debris. He said it remains sorely in need of adequate lighting. Roberts asked if a barely-visible historic marker between Ivy Lane and the SHA District Office could be placed more visibly.

Lastly, the potential arrival of the FBI in Greenbelt and the effect on state roads, according to Saimbré, has not been formally addressed but has been under discussion. Jordan emphasized that planning for this would need to be started well ahead.

and over-policing but are cited by some as impediments to curbing juvenile crime. In October four teens died in a crash in Bowie in a vehicle that was stolen at gunpoint in Greenbelt earlier that day (see page 8 of the October 5 issue).

Wildfire Smoke Impacts Air Quality

Air quality was poor in Greenbelt on several days in June as smoke from wildfires in western Canada drifted in on the prevailing winds. A code-red air quality warning was issued on June 7, upgraded to code purple on June 8 when the smoke was particularly dense. The city advised everyone to limit outdoor activity and close windows and doors. The outdoor pool closed for a day and the Greenbelt Police Station, Community Center, Youth Center and Springhill Lake Recreation Center offered indoor space for residents who needed to escape the unhealthy air. Prince George’s County Public Schools cancelled outdoor activities and groups planning outdoor events cancelled or moved them inside. Those who work or exercise outdoors curtailed their activities, wore a mask or wished they had.

Musical Highlights

Greenbelters had expanded opportunities in 2023 to both listen to and perform music. In February, the Baroque music ensemble Relic, of which Greenbelt resident Natalie Kress is a member, played free concerts at the Community Center, Greenbelt Community Church and New Deal Café, nearly filling each venue.

These concerts inspired Greenbelter Anne Gardner to organize a local orchestra. The newly formed Greenbelt Community Orchestra started rehearsals in July with more than 50 members and played its first concert in November.

The street band Greenbelt Honk! Situation, which formed in 2022, enlivened many Greenbelt events, including the Green Man Festival, Pride Fest, Summer Camp Showcase, Labor Day Festival, Blues Festival, HUG Walk, Halloween, Krampus Festival and a winter solstice parade and gathering.

The long-established Greenbelt Concert Band always welcomes new members. The band or its wind and brass ensembles played concerts on Greenbelt Day, July 4th, for the holiday tree lighting and at the American Legion Hall, Green Ridge House and some out-of-town venues. And the New Deal Café hosted live music most nights of the year.

Greenbelter Derek Maselloff conducts the new Greenbelt Community Orchestra on November 19.

Green Schools, More Secure School, Maybe a New School?

In May, three Greenbelt schools – Eleanor Roosevelt High, Greenbelt Middle and Springhill Lake Elementary – were recognized by Prince George’s County Public Schools for their environmental accomplishments. Recognized also were teachers Danielle Todd-Jones of Springhill Lake and Martha Leighty of Dora Kennedy French Immersion School.

The 2023-24 school year saw the introduction of new security measures in county middle and high schools, in the wake of several guns being found on school property over the past year. Students were required to carry clear backpacks from the start of the school year. In mid-December, weapons detectors were implemented at ERHS for all students and visitors.

Under Phase Two of the County’s Public Private Partnership (P3) Blueprint Schools, used to more rapidly build new schools using private funds, a new building for Springhill Lake Elementary School is among the eight schools planned. Rancorous Board of Education meetings ensued, putting the project in jeopardy. Debate raged over language in the memorandum of understanding with labor unions. At a special meeting on September 28, the Board approved the Phase Two funding.

City Council

By year’s end there had been unprecedented turnover on council. Councilmember Colin Byrd resigned in August; council appointed former Councilmember Konrad Herling to finish out Byrd’s term. Councilmember Judith Davis declined to run for reelection after 30 years on council. The new council was majority female, represented all three areas of the city and had three Black members with Councilmember Danielle McKinney becoming the city’s first Black woman on the council. These statistics changed quickly with the death of Councilmember Ric Gordon at the very beginning of his second term on council.

The electorate will likely also look different in 2025 as a ballot question asking if noncitizens should be allowed to vote was overwhelmingly approved. This vote was nonbinding but council is expected to honor the referendum results.

or first harvest) and that it was part of the harvest ceremonies in many African societies. Dr. Maulana Karenga, born in Parsonsburg, Md., studied the cultural traditions of Swahili-speaking societies and adapted some of their traditions for African Americans and members of the African Diaspora. Kwanzaa is celebrated worldwide.

Rosado described the symbols of Kwanzaa. The Pan-African flag was designed by the United Negro Improvement Association, founded by Marcus Garvey; the red, green and black colors have been adopted in the flags of several African nations. The Kinara holds the seven candles called the Nguzo Saba, representing the principles and values of Kwanzaa, which begins on December 26 and ends on January 1. Other symbols include a mat representing history and tradition, fruits representing the harvest and ears of corn for the number of children in a given family. A moment of silence was held to honor the memory of the late Greenbelt City Councilmember Ric Gordon, and next a Libation ceremony was performed to remember and thank ancestors for their sacrifice and determination to survive enslavement, discrimination and lost opportunities because of systemic racism.

Principles of Kwanzaa

Joe Parks, of the Greenbelt Black History and Culture Committee, explained that the seven principles are designed to build relationships in a community and several are reflective of Greenbelt: 1) Umoja – unity within the family and within the community; 2) Kujichagulia or self-determination – defining ourselves and our interests and not letting others define our interest and needs; 3) Ujima – collective work and responsibility by working together to solve community issues; 4) Ujamaa – Cooperative economics, helping to build wealth within the community; 5) Nia or purpose – determining our personal goals, developing and sharing our skills to build local and nation communities; 6) Kuumba – creativity, fostering innovation in the arts, music and industry; and 7) Imani – faith in ourselves, in our people and in our community. As Parks named each principle, a child from the audience came up and helped light a candle.

Dan Gillotte, manager of the Greenbelt Co-op Supermarket, identified Umoja, Kujichagulia, Ujima and Ujamaa as Kwanzaa principles that align with the Co-op’s purpose and values in a recent membership letter. Kwanzaa principles are universal and relatable to everyone.

Supportive Organizations

Jackson shared information about her nonprofit organization whose purpose is to be a poverty disruptor and to organize at-risk youth through mentoring, athletic pursuits and counseling. Carolyn Lambright-Davis, an active Greenbelt resident, shared the history of the Greenbelt Black History and Culture Committee and invited attendees to join. RUAK provided free books for children to take. The books represented zawadi – what gifts are called in the celebration.

Rev. Ray Raysor blessed the food.

Activities

Lambright-Davis led an exciting game of Kwanzaa Bingo and Rosado led a Black History game that was more conversational than competitive. Some folks danced and some children played with the toys available in The SPACE. The program was a positive way to end the year and begin a new one.

Celebrations at the New Deal Café

Patrons enjoy Christmas caroling at the New Deal Café on December 24. There was standing-room only at the event led by Katy Gaughan and Frank Gervasi, standing at center.
